LOS ANGELES, OCTOBER 5, 2018 – LIVVIA, upcoming pop recording artist, released her first official single “Damn” at 12:01AM today, on DSP’s, plus premiering a lyric video on YouTube. The track is the perfect break-up anthem that sees the young solo star taking flight. “Damn” debuted on the Top 20 of Spotify’s New Music Friday & Apple Music’s A-List Pop.

“Damn” is so honest. It’s something we all can relate to after — or right before — we go through a tough break up,” says LIVVIA about her latest release. “Damn” follows on the heels of “Gratitude” and “Catch A Body” featuring Quavo, both of which received glowing praise from fans and media alike.

Originally from the Bay Area, now living in Los Angeles, LIVVIA has been singing, writing songs, dancing, and playing piano and guitar for as long as she can remember. When she was in her late teens, she toured internationally as a solo artist with such artists as Jessie J., Meghan Trainor, The Jonas Brothers and more. Now, just a few years later, LIVVIA has embraced a more developed sound on her latest single “Damn”, produced by hitmakers Rock Mafia

While not working on her music which displays pristine pop production with undeniably hooky choruses, LIVVIA graduated this past Spring from the prestigious University of California, Berkeley, with a degree in Economics. She is proud that she’s making it on her own timeline and her terms without straying from her mantra of “Be fearless; break rules; don't be afraid to go your own way.” She explains, “That's what being an artist means.”
